

Newlands Training

NEWSLETTER JULY TO SEPTEMBER 2007

Most land-based businesses are working all hours now to keep up with “the growing season”. Summer is also the popular time for staff to want to take their holidays. As a result, training is given a very comfortable back seat and our Course Programme often looks a bit sparse until the autumn.

We always like to respond to your training requests as quickly as we can, so do please ring or email your requirements to us if you cannot find what you want on our current course programme.

Our machinery training site has now met the approval of the Construction Industry Scheme and anyone wishing to achieve their CPCS Red Card to enable them to work on construction sites can now do so with us. The Scheme is fairly complex and we have a booklet which explains every detail – please make contact if you need a copy.

Are you confident about your Risk Assessments? Most businesses are required to risk assess their work before the job is started and in many cases these assessments must be recorded. This can be a bit daunting for many people and we have an excellent 2 day course which leads people towards their CIEH Certificate and will most certainly give courage and confidence to the trainee as they work their way towards this qualification. Please ring if you are interested.

Currently it is raining! Let's hope by the time you read this, the sun is shining for you and you are able to make a mental note that the training requirements of your Staff need an appraisal before long.
